Gallatin Emerges as Middle Tennessee's Job Hotspot

March 2, 2015 – Gallatin, TN: If you build it, they will come. When it comes to job opportunities, Gallatin, TN has created its own Field of Dreams. As companies like Beretta USA announce relocation to Gallatin and employers already located in the city announce expansions, more than 1,100 new jobs are slated to come online in the next 24 months. And that's in addition to the hundreds of jobs already waiting to be filled. In the meantime, city officials are working overtime to help guide applicants to eager employers.

"Gallatin is definitely Middle Tennessee's job hotspot," said Gallatin Mayor Paige Brown, who noted that hits on www.WorkinGallatin.com, a website listing job opportunities offered by Gallatin employers, have more than doubled in the last three months. "We're dealing with an unprecedented situation, and frankly, there has never been a better time to be a job seeker."

Robust economic development in Gallatin means good news for job hunters throughout the region, especially those seeking work that doesn't involve a lengthy commute. "We believe that most of the new jobs can be filled by people who live within 45 minutes of Gallatin," said James Fenton, Executive Director of the Gallatin Economic Development Agency. "Whether you're looking for entry level, administrative, technical, craft or management opportunities, Gallatin's got it."
