The Sumner County Stormwater Managers are teaming with the Tennessee Environmental Council and Volunteer State Community College to host a tree planting event to plant 10,000 trees across the state of Tennessee in February.

In Gallatin, volunteers are encouraged to meet at the end of Champion Drive just inside Triple Creek Park.

According to the Tennessee Environmental Council, communities with more trees have:

- less crime and graffiti
- less asthma and lung disease
- increase in home values and trees improved economic, air quality and flooding benefits
